The election in each ward and precinct shall be conducted by one Judge, and one Secretary, to be elected by the Republican voters present at the opening of the primaries.

Each delegation must present to the convention the proper credentials, duly attested by the presiding Judge and Secretary, together with a list of the names of those voting at the primaries. There must be a member of the County Central Committee chosen in each ward and precinct, who shall serve in this capacity until the next county primary election.

By order of the County Central Committee. C. C. SMITH, Chairman.

John W. Crooks, Secretary.
Our old friend, Hugh T. O'Connor, formerly of this city, now of Corydon, Indiana, was last week chosen by the Republicans of his district as their candidate for Congress.

We trust our friend may land in the exalted position, and be a statesman of whom his friends here may be proud.

Hon. Edward S. Wilson, of Ironton, who has been appointed United States marshal for Porto Rico, will sail for his post of duty from New York on the transport Sedgwick tomorrow. Judge Holt, of Kentucky, who has an appointment under the government on the island, will sail with Mr. Wilson. The thousands of Ohio friends of Hon. E. S. Wilson will wish him the best of luck in the discharge of his duties on the island.—Ohio State Journal.

Concerning the paragraph in the Cambridge Jeffersonian two days since, in which that paper would give out the idea that the Leader has been bought with a view to furthering Mr. VanVoorhis's interests, it might be well to rise and state that Mr. VanVoorhis has no financial connection whatever with the new Leader Company, nor so far as the new people are aware is he apprised of the fact of the change of ownership.

The paper is to be handled in the interests of no particular candidate, but is to simply be a straightaway Republican organ. That it will support VanVoorhis is a matter of course. That gentleman is the Republican candidate for Congress from this district.

The Soldiers.

The last night spent by the members of the Sixth was a surprise to many people, who feared that the soldiers would celebrate by raising all kinds of trouble and making Rome bowl generally. These fears, however, were entirely groundless.

There many soldiers on the streets up to a late hour last evening, but so far as we were able to learn there was not one who did not behave himself in a gentlemanly manner.

The unfortunate occurrences on the first night after the Sixth arrived caused some unpleasant feeling between soldiers and citizens, but the former have since so conducted themselves that there has been no ground for complaint. The people of the city, we believe, do not look upon the boys as a regiment of rowdies, as the action of a few on that memorable first night in town led them to believe, but they are considered a regiment of gentlemen. They will leave Marietta today with the knowledge that they leave many friends behind.

A Story From Canton.

Standing on his porch of a Saturday evening, the President looks down North Market street to the business heart of Canton and sees reasons for the faith that is in him. The shop windows are ablaze. Every bank is open. From the factory suburbs come processions of alert, well-clad, contented-looking people. On the sidewalks for half a dozen blocks around the court house one must accommodate his step to the throng or take to the brick-paved streets. It is impossible not to catch the fine temper of the crowd and feel elated over it. The stores are full of Saturday shoppers. Those who are not there to buy are making a social evening of it. The banks are doing business by electric light and with a steady run of patrons. Where the street cars transfer is a jam. Good humor is general. In this city of 40,000 people the well-wisher will see on Saturday nights in the summer of 1900 evidences of real prosperity, the prosperity that reaches every home as will make him glad.

Mark Hanna, at the close of a day in Canton, with the conditions impressed upon him, said:

"I understand Mr. Bryan says he is willing to give us all the votes of the prosperous and take the rest. I am ready to go to the polls with him on that proposition."

The President has no fears about November. This does not mean that he thinks a vigorous and well-sustained campaign is unnecessary. The President has been in politics many years. He understands the field that calls for effort even with the best of causes. He was defeated for Congress once through persistent and artful misrepresentation of the tariff measure which bore his name. True, the people rallied from the misunderstanding, and a couple of years later advanced him to higher station than before.

Mr. McKinley is full of confidence now because he feels sure of the ground on which the Republican party stands and equally certain that the professions of the Democratic party are not those which the majority of the people will sustain. But the President would not abate in the least the vigor of the campaign. He would have misrepresentation met with ruth. Republican policies and principles defended by those entitled to speak for them. He would have the campaign conducted with no relaxation until the votes are in the ballot box. He feels sure of victory. He believes the accentuation of that victory by the largest possible electoral and popular majority will advance the interests of the nation.

The President argues from performance, from facts. His acceptance of the nomination showed this not once, but repeatedly.

He Got Teddy's Picture.

A Chicago kinesiograph man tells how he managed to get a picture of Governor Roosevelt in St. Paul the other day. "I went to him several times," he says, "and asked him to pose for me, but he turned me down cold, and told me that unless the National Committee ordered it he would not pose. Now, I went all the way to St. Paul to get him and I did not like to come back empty handed. I finally decided I would bribe the back driver. I told him there was $5 in it for him if he would stop the carriage in front of my machine. I agreed with him that when I raised my cane he was to stop. As the carriage came down the street I waved my cane. The driver pulled up his horses and the crowd cheered all the louder. While 'Teddy' was bowing and acknowledging the ovation, my man was at work. Suddenly 'Teddy' saw me and the cane. He knew I 'had him,' but he turned his back to the camera. He was too late. I motioned for the driver to go on and 'Teddy's' picture will be flashed all over the country."

Editorial Afterthoughts.

The paramount issue in Kentucky is to get through on a train without getting held up.

In seeking for light on the Democratic platform of the present year it is easy to see that 16 to 1 is the red light.

It would not be surprising if the Kentucky courts should pronounce the Republican State Convention to be "invalid."

An officer of the Anti-Imperialist League refers to President McKinley as "William of Canton." What's the matter of William of Lincoln?

If the average American could have his own way in treating with the Chinese "boxers" there would not be enough feathers to go around.

Col. Bryan has been uncommonly prosperous during the past four years. And it cannot be said that he has been putting in any overtime, either.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

GOVERNOR NASH

Visits the Soldiers at Camp McMaken.—Events of the Day.

Camp McMaken was in a fever of expectation all yesterday morning. Important guests were expected to arrive numerous attractions had been billed for the afternoon and evening's entertainment and much labor had been expended to make the day a success.

The gods were propitious and the day, while distinguished by a rather high temperature, permitted the uninterrupted presentation of the entire program. That the program was intensely interesting from start to finish every one of the large crowd of spectators will unreservedly admit.

Immediately after the arrival of Governor Nash and party at the camp, people began to arrive in constantly increasing crowds until by the time the exercises of the evening were ready to be presented, the large grounds were packed by a living sea of people. Carriages were drawn up in every available part of the old track and triple lines of spectators extending all along the northwestern side of the old track, surged to and fro in their efforts to see the different evolutions of the parade.

Governor Nash, accompanied by Gen. Geo. R. Geiger, Adjutant General of the State, and Col. H. T. Taylor, Quartermaster General, arrived on the 12:40 T. & O. C. E. train yesterday.

Lieutenant Colonel Bryant, Adjutant Duffy and Captain Rydman, of the Sixth, were at the train to receive their visitors. Mayor Sykes was also present and extended the hospitality of the city to the Governor.

The party then entered a carriage and were driven to the grounds. On account of the intense heat, to which several men had succumbed in the morning, no formal reception of the Governor by the Sixth was made. The detail of the guard, twenty men strong, were drawn up in salute as the Chief Executive entered the grounds.

Three large tents facing the parade grounds had been erected for the use of the Governor and his party, but as the band stand was cooler and better appointed, the tents were not used until evening.

In the afternoon the game of base ball between the nine of Co. H and the Marietta team took place. Co. H went down in defeat before the Marietta team. The playing on both sides was rather slack and full of errors. The final score was 7 to 2 in favor of Marietta.

The dress parade and inspection by the Governor and Gen. Geiger took place at 6:30 p. m. This exercise was reviewed by an extremely large crowd of people and was executed in the skillful manner peculiar to all the Sixth's military movements.

While the regiment was drawn up on parade the four military organizations of the city headed by the Marietta band marched on the parade grounds and stationed themselves at the northwestern end of the new track. Here they remained until the Sixth had retired from the grounds, when they were reviewed by Governor Nash and party. The organizations of the city were reviewed by Gov. Nash in the following order: First, Marietta band; second, G. A. R.; third, Sons of Veterans, fourth, Marietta Guards; fifth, High School Cadets. All came in for a fair share of applause. The High School Cadets made a fine appearance in their uniforms of white duck trousers, white gloves and sash. The soldiers of the Sixth expressed themselves as being very favorably impressed with Marietta's military organizations.

The Marietta band gave a short concert before the regimental headquarters and later in the evening rendered the opening number of the minstrel show.

The cast of the minstrel show is made up of members of Co. H and Co. L. Corporal Curt Benton and Jim Benton, of Co. H, were largely instrumental in getting up the show and making it the success it was.

The various numbers of the program were well presented and elicited from the spectators numerous bursts of applause. The program was as follows:

On account of the lateness of the hour many people left before the concert was over.

Governor Nash and party will probably return this morning to Columbus. Capt. James, inspector of rifle practice, left yesterday for his home in Toledo. Capt. James was called home by a telegram referring to important business matters and needing his personal attention.

The two special trains which were ordered Monday will take the boys home today, the first train leaving at 5 p. m. Capt. Rydman and Capt. Unger with the necessary details, will stay a few days with us in order to arrange for the transportation of the Sixth's baggage and camping utensils. The hospital tent which has been well patronized for the past few days, is practically deserted now, as every patient is able to be out and can now dispense with the hospital corps. Almost all the cases which have been reported to Dr. Waters were cases of temporary prostration and were relieved in a short time. One man, however, was taken seriously ill several days ago and the heart action was entirely stopped for a few seconds. The soldier has sufficiently recovered to stand guard duty.

Blanket tossing seems to still be a favorite form of amusement with the soldiers and in almost all parts of the ground the shouts of the "tossers" and the protestations of the victim can be heard. This forms one of the soldiers' amusements and seems never to fail of yielding fresh pleasure. Many tricks are practiced on the unwary recruit at night. Mock court martials are being held and those convicted have to endure all sorts of punishment. Two privates were kept busy the other night in carrying water and pouring it on the captain. That officer was not in at the time and the boys had their working for nothing, but now that they have been initiated the experience will be valuable in treating others the same way.

The well on the S. B. Hildreth farm which is owned by Chas. Miller and other Marietta parties, was drilled in to the sand at a depth of 196 feet. The well started to flow and tanks were taken out to save the oil. The production has not yet been determined, but it is expected that the well will be a good one. This well, if it proves to be a paying producer, will open up a large lot of new territory.

The well on the Sheppard farm, which is being drilled by Sloan & Wharf for Harper, Davis, Scott and others, reached the Mitchell sand at a depth of 350 feet. No oil was found in this sand, but the well will probably be drilled deeper.

Meisenholder & Wywell are drilling their No. 3 on the W. H. Miller farm. They expect to reach the shallow sand at 190 feet. The well will be completed in a few days.

Bill Boards Going.

In compliance with the orders of Council, the unsightly bill boards on the Ice Harbor lot are being removed. This is but one step along the line as laid out by the Improvement Association and favored by the City Council. It is hoped that by next spring at least the Ice Harbor lot will take on a different appearance and instead of being the city's dumping ground will be transformed into a park or public garden of which the city may well feel proud.

A Pierce Blaze.

Fire started in the garret of H. Uhlmann's house near the box factory about 10 o'clock yesterday morning and before the blaze was discovered, it had made considerable headway. An alarm was turned in, the department was soon on the scene and the boys had a lively fight to get the flames under control. The upper story was badly burned and the house and contents were damaged by water. The loss amounted to about $250.

Frightened His Family.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning Officer Place was scalded to the West Side, where, it is said David Peters had fired four shots in his house and had frightened his family.

When the officer arrived he found that Peters had subsided and had gone to bed. No arrest was made.

No Meeting.

Last night was the regular meeting night of the City Council, but no meeting was held, as there were not enough members present to constitute a quorum.

Cake Walk.

The guests at the Hotel Boyer will this evening offer to their friends an attractive pastime, consisting of a cakewalk to be participated in by colored people only, who will go through their evolutions accompanied by the Colored Quartette.

A Handsome Improvement Contemplated.
Mr. John Mills and Mr. W. W. Mills are intending in the near future to erect a stone wall about their home on Fifth and Putnam streets, an improvement that will materially enhance the beauty of an already charming premises.

Ed. Ryan's Case.

Frank N. Wedge filed an affidavit with the Mayor Sunday night against Edward F. Ryan, of oil well fame, for obtaining property under false pretenses, says the Zanesville Times Recorder. It appears that Mr. Wedge sold a note for $100 to Ryan for $95, Ryan paying for the same with a personal check on the First National bank at Marietta. Mr. Wedge at once took steps to find out if Mr. Ryan's check on the bank was good and was informed by the bank's officials that it was worthless and he then brought charges against the latter. Ryan meanwhile feeling himself urgently called away had left the city, but was located in Marietta and there arrested. Chief Evans will leave today to bring him back to answer to the charge. It is alleged by responsible parties that the paying of accounts with worthless checks is an old and oft worked habit of Ryan's, possibly due to forgetfulness as to which bank he has his heavy deposits in. The hearing of the case has not yet been set.
